EDUCATION

Certified Public Manager, July 2015. Florida Center for Public Management, Florida State University.
Doctor of Philosophy (Entomology), University of Florida, April 1994. Dissertation topic: Revision of the genus Ischyryus Lacordaire, 1842 (Erotylidae: Triplacinae) of North and Central America. 362 pp., 148 figs. Advisor: Dr. R. E. Woodruff. Committee: Drs. D. H. Habeck, J. W. Kimbrough, and M. C. Thomas.
Master of Science (Entomology), University of Florida, August 1988. Thesis: The pleasing fungus beetles of Florida (Coleoptera: Erotylidae). 172 pp., 53 figs. Advisor: Dr. R. E. Woodruff. Committee: Drs. D. H. Habeck, and J. W. Kimbrough.
Bachelor of Science (Zoology), Eastern Illinois University, May 1986, Summa Cum Laude. Senior project: Erotylidae of Illinois. 49 pp., 26 figs., 17 maps. Advisor: Dr. M. A. Goodrich.

EXPERIENCE

May 2019 – present: Entomology Section Administrator, Head Curator FSCA and Assistant Bureau Chief - Entomology, Nematology and Plant Pathology Bureau (aka Diagnostics), Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services - Division of Plant Industry, many duties as previous, with assistant administrative duties for entire Bureau, and additional agricultural duties assisting upper administration.
July 2014 – present: Chief Editor to 2017, Assistant Editor 2017-present (volunteer), Insecta Mundi. Oversee and manage production of the scientific journal Insecta Mundi. [no salary]
August 2013 – June 2019: Entomology Section Administrator and Head Curator (Curator of Coleoptera), Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services - Division of Plant Industry, Florida State Collections of Arthropods, Gainesville, FL. DUTIES: Oversee section and perform administrative duties for Entomology, oversee 20± staff in collections and agricultural duties, curate and identify Coleoptera; act as a liaison with the University of Florida - Entomology and Nematology Department taxonomists, and the Florida Museum of Natural History (McGuire Center for Lepidoptera Research); perform research and publish scientific papers on groups of interest. Position description available upon request.
January 9-21, 2012: Co-instructed Scarab Identification Workshop in San Ramon, Peru. Jointly offered through CEBIO and UNL, lead by B. C. Ratcliffe, assisted by M. L. Jameson, A. T. B. Smith, R. Cave, F. Ocampo. [trip expenses covered, no salary]
January 2007 - December 2013: Managing Editor (volunteer), Insecta Mundi. Helped establish e-publishing of journal. Work with authors and reviewers to prepare manuscripts for publication. Work with editorial board and printers to complete the publication in three formats: CD-DVD, PDF on line, and in print. [no salary]
Sept. 2005 - July 2013: Entomologist, Collections Manager, Florida State Collections of Arthropods, Florida Department of Agriculture, Division of Plant Industry, Gainesville, FL. DUTIES: Curate and identify Orthoptera, Mollusca, and Coleoptera; handle donation records, incoming and outgoing packages, file USFWS 3-177 declarations; assist other curators and technicians with matters that affect entire collection (like annual fumigation and supply ordering); oversee organization of supplies in warehouse; act as a liaison with the University of Florida - Entomology Department taxonomists, and the Florida Museum of Natural History (McGuire Center for Lepidoptera Research); perform research and publish scientific papers on groups of interest. Position description available upon request.
Feb.1993-Sept. 2005: Laboratory Technician IV, Florida Department of Agriculture, Division of Plant Industry, Gainesville, FL. DUTIES: maintain collections and other resources; use computer databases to maintain records; curate of dry and alcohol collections; assist visitors and give tours of facilities; make presentations on the facilities and insects; prepare microscope slides of various taxa for specialists; build type catalog of Florida State Collection of Arthropods. Other tasks include: identification of insects to species level on demand, man displays and make general entomological presentations (e.g. State Fair, County Agricultural Festivals, etc.), scanning electron microscope work and specimen preparation, maintain various supplies, and literature searches. Position description available upon request.
August-December 2002. With Dr. M. C. Thomas, taught Systematics of Coleoptera Class, at the University of Florida. [no salary]
November 21-24, 2002. Organized the Florida State Collection of Arthropods and Coleopterists Society Field Trip to Archbold Biological Station. [no salary]
August 1986-Feb.1993: Teaching/Research Graduate Assistant (50/50) University of Florida, Gainesville: RESEARCH DUTIES - assist Dr. R. E. Woodruff in the curation of Coleoptera at the Florida State Collection of Arthropods and other research projects which included the use of critical point dryers, scanning electron microscopes, various collecting and preserving techniques, literature searches, data collecting and recording, handling of loans, editing of manuscripts, and collection curation: TEACHING DUTIES - assisted and/or taught laboratory for various entomology courses at the University of Florida. Primarily: Principles of entomology, Insect identification, Immature insects. Others: Insect ecology, Field entomology, Insect physiology, Six-Legged Science.
August 1992 and 1994: Assisted Drs. D. Nickle, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, DC, and J. Castner, University of Florida, Gainesville, with their Earthwatch Project, The Katyids of Peru, in the Amazonian rainforests in the vicinity of Iquitos, Peru. Duties included: leading volunteers (12-15) in research activities and excursions, specimen preparation and transport, building a reference insect collection for a Tropical Entomology class. [trip expenses covered, no salary]
January 1983-August 1986: Assisted curator of the Spooner-Reigel Insect Collection, Dr. M. A. Goodrich, at Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, with various maintenance and curatorial duties. [Learned beetles with no reference collection, and only Arnett's Beetles of the United States. Learned firsthand the importance of good key characters/characterizations and illustrations, which were often lacking in this book. Made many mistakes.]
